Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 3

Your network contains an Active Directory domain named contoso.com.

You need to identify whether the Active Directory Recycle Bin is enabled.

What should you do?

- A. From Windows PowerShell, run the Get-ADObject cmdlet.
- B. From Ldp, search for the Reanimate-Tombstones object.
- C. From Windows PowerShell, run the Get-ADOptionalFeature cmdlet.
- D. From Ldp, search for the LostAndFound container.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Q. How do I enable the Active Directory (AD) Recycle Bin?

A. Once you've raised the forest level to Windows Server 2008 R2, you need to use the Enable-ADOptionalFeature cmdlet to enable the Recycle Bin for the forest.

You can check if the Recycle Bin is enabled by viewing the AD Option features:

```
PS C:\> Get-ADOptionalFeature -filter \{name -like "*" \}
```

Reference:

<http://windowsitpro.com/windows/q-how-do-i-enable-active-directory-ad-recycle-bin>

WRONG ANSWERS

Get-ADObject allows us to bring AD objects into PowerShell's pipe so we can manipulate them. We must specifically use this to restore objects from the Recycle Bin, but the scenario asks us how to identify if the Recycle Bin is even enabled. The LostAndFound container holds objects with conflicting states, before replication occurs.

"In some cases, an administrator might create or move an object into a container on one domain controller and another administrator might delete that same container on a different domain controller before the object is replicated. In such cases, the object is added to the LostAndFound container for the domain."Reference:
