Explanation:

A: Test Outlook Anywhere Connectivity

Applies to: Exchange Server 2013

You can test for end-to-end client Outlook Anywhere connectivity by using either the Shell or the Exchange Remote Connectivity Analyzer (ExRCA). This includes testing for connectivity through the Autodiscover service, creating a user profile, and signing in to the user's mailbox. All the required values are retrieved from the Autodiscover service.

You are the administrator for a group of shell script developers. They use vi, and have asked you to make their scripts automatically executable when they save their files. How can this be accomplished?

- A. It is not possible to automatically set the execute bit on with the umask setting, or vi option.
- B. Enter umask-son the command line, or include it in each user's startup script.
- C. Enter umask 000 on the command line, or include it in each user's startup script.
- D. Enter set-ovion the command line, or include it in each user's startup script.
- E. Enter umask777 on the command line, or include it in each user's startup script.
- F. Enter umask766 the command line, or include it in the global startup script for the default shell.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Unlike DOS, which uses the file extension to determine if a file is executable or not, UNIX relies on file permissions. The value assigned by umask is subtracted from the default. User's file creation mask. umask sets an environment variable which automatically sets file permissions on newly created files. i.e. it will set the shell process's file creation mask to mode. umask 000 would grant full permissions.
