Which of the following teams has the responsibility of accounting for personnel and rendering aid?

- A. Emergency management team
- B. Physical security team
- C. Damage assessment team
- D. Emergency response team

Answer: D

Explanation:

The emergency response team has the responsibility of accounting for personnel and rendering aid. The emergency response team includes fire wardens for each floor and those persons trained in administering first aid.

Answer option D is incorrect. The damage assessment team assesses the damage of the disaster in order to provide the estimate of time required to recover.

Answer option A is incorrect. The physical security team addresses crowd control and security and operates 24 hours a day to protect individuals and organizational assets.

Answer option C is incorrect. The Emergency management team consists of executives and line managers to make strong decisions at the Emergency Operations Center. This team coordinates with the managers still operating on undamaged areas of the business and makes decisions about the allocation of personnel necessary to support the response and recovery efforts. The leaders of each team report to the emergency management team.
