Explanation:

Topic 6, Coho Winery

Overview

You are a database developer for a company named Coho Winery.

Coho Winery has an office in London.

Coho Winery has an application that is used to process purchase orders from customers and retailers in 10 different countries.

The application uses a web front end to process orders from the Internet. The web front end adds orders to a database named Sales. The Sales database is managed by a server named Server1. An empty copy of the Sales database is created on a server named Server2 in the London office. The database will store sales data for customers in Europe.

A new version of the application is being developed. In the new version, orders will be placed either by using the existing web front end or by loading an XML file.

Once a week, you receive two files that contain the purchase orders and the order details of orders from offshore facilities.

You run the usp_ImportOrders stored procedure and the usp_ImportOrderDetails stored procedure to copy the offshore facility orders to the Sales database.

The Sales database contains a table named Orders that has more than 20 million rows.

Database Definitions Database and Tables

The following scripts are used to create the database and its tables:

Stored Procedures

The following are the definitions of the stored procedures used in the database:

Indexes

The following indexes are part of the Sales database:

Data Import

The XML files will contain the list of items in each order. Each retailer will have its own XML schema and will be able to use different types of encoding. Each XML schema will use a default namespace. The default namespaces are not guaranteed to be unique.

For testing purposes, you receive an XSD file from a customer. For testing purposes, you also create an XML schema collection named ValidateOrder. ValidateOrder contains schemas for all of the retailers.

The new version of the application must validate the XML file, parse the data, and store the parsed data along with the original XML file in the database. The original XML file must be stored without losing any data.

Reported Issues

Performance Issues

You notice the following for the usp_GetOrdersAndItems stored procedure:

The stored procedure takes a long time to complete.

Less than two percent of the rows in the Orders table are retrieved by usp_GetOrdersAndItems.

A full table scan runs when the stored procedure executes.

The amount of disk space used and the amount of time required to insert data are very high.

You notice that the usp_GetOrdersByProduct stored procedure uses a table scan when the stored procedure is executed.

Page Split Issues

Updates to the Orders table cause excessive page splits on the IX_Orders_ShipDate index.

Requirements Site Requirements

Users located in North America must be able to view sales data for customers in North America and Europe in a single report. The solution must minimize the amount of traffic over the WAN link between the offices.

Bulk Insert Requirements

The usp_ImportOrderDetails stored procedure takes more than 10 minutes to complete. The stored procedure runs daily. If the stored procedure fails, you must ensure that the stored procedure restarts from the last successful set of rows.

Index Monitoring Requirements

The usage of indexes in the Sales database must be monitored continuously. Monitored data must be maintained if a server restarts. The monitoring solution must minimize the usage of memory resources and processing resources.

NEW QUESTION: 4

What is the primary requirement for collaboration and social media?

- A. protecting network edges
- B. enabling BYOD transformation
- C. authorizing content use
- D. securing cloud transition

Answer: C
