NEW QUESTION: 3

You are the SPHR for your organization. There has been some issues in your company about how much authority functional managers are allowed to have over personnel decisions. Your structure currently has all decision-making authority in higher levels of the organization. Which of the following terms best describes your organizational structure?

- A. Functional structure
- B. Strong matrix structure
- C. Projectized
- D. Centralized organization

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Answer option A is correct.

An organization that retains all decision-making power at higher levels only is a centralized organization.

Answer option B is incorrect. A projectized structure describes a company that uses management by projects. This structure gives authority to project managers and all actions, jobs, and opportunities are treated as projects.

Answer option C is incorrect. A strong matrix structure describes a structure where resources are used from across the company and functional managers have decision making authority over the resources.

Answer option D is incorrect. A functional structure describes an entity where each manager is in charge of decisions, resources, and projects in their department. Each department is isolated from other entities within the company.
