NEW QUESTION: 3

Which two statements are true about CellCLI?

- A. With a simple CellCLI command, you can synchronize changes to all the storage cells in the Exadata realm.
- B. Using CellCLI, you can stop and start the ASM instances that are using the grid disks on the Exadata storage cell.
- C. Using a CellCLI command, you can change the SNMP subscribers or add multiple SNMP subscribers.
- D. You cannot use CellCLI to gather the serial numbers of physical disks.
- E. Using a CellCLI command, you can see whether grid disks are being used by ASM or not.

Answer: B, E

Explanation:

B:

*Making a grid disk inactive effectively offlines its associated ASM disk.

CellCLI> alter griddisk PRORECO_CD_11_cell01 inactive
GridDisk PRORECO_CD_11_cell01 successfully altered

*The command will wait until the ASM disk becomes offline. If you want the prompt to come back immediately without waiting, you can use nowait clause.

CellCLI> alter griddisk PRORECO_CD_11_cell01 inactive nowait

You can make it active again:

CellCLI> alter griddisk PRORECO_CD_11_cell01 active GridDisk
PRORECO_CD_11_cell01 successfully altered Incorrect: not E:
CellCLI> list physicaldisk detail output include:
physicalSerial: XXXXXX
